NEBRASKA STATE FAIR ADDS AGRICULTURAL DIRECTOR

Grand Island, NE – Vaughn Sievers has joined the Nebraska State Fair as the Agriculture Director. As Agriculture Director, he will be responsible for all agricultural operations including livestock and equine competitions, agriculture education programming and collaboration with agriculture education partners. Sievers brings a wealth of experience in the livestock industry and knowledge of the Fair to the Nebraska State Fair team. His people-oriented and results-driven approach will help the Nebraska State Fair grow. The Nebraska State Fair has always been a major part of Vaughn’s life. Vaughn was hooked on the State Fair when he started to attend the events at an early age. Tending to the cattle was higher on Vaughn’s list of things to do than being inside. He is super excited to bring that same enthusiasm to the Agriculture Director’s position to plan the 2021 Nebraska State Fair.

ABOUT NEBRASKA STATE FAIR

Nebraska State Fair is an annual 11-day event that is held at the end of August ending on Labor Day in Grand Island, NE. Celebrating 152 years of entertaining families, the State Fair is home to arguably the finest facilities in the country hosting competitive livestock and draft horse shows, a milking parlor and birthing pavilion, a gift shop and a large indoor shopping experience. The State Fair brings to Nebraska the state’s largest carnival, and features more than 60 food stands, competitive exhibits, a wide variety of grounds entertainment, equine shows and motor sports. It is also home to Raising Nebraska, a remarkable agriculture education center operated by the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.
